

NATURE HALLOWEEN CRAFTS

Fallen leaf ghosts

This activity transforms fallen leaves into ghosts to decorate the classroom. Start by going for a walk in the forest, park, or backyard to collect leaves from the ground. Let the leaves dry, then paint them white and carefully use a black marker for eyes and mouth.

Mini acorn pumpkins

October is prime time for finding acorns (also known as oak nuts) wherever oak trees grow. Let them dry and give them new life as mini pumpkins. Students can have fun drawing different facial expressions while practicing fine motor skills with these tiny items.

Pinecone bats

This easy DIY activity turns pinecones into adorable Halloween decorations. Start by collecting pinecones from your local area. Once they are dry, they become the body of the bat. You can create the wings and ears from black paper or even leftover felt or other strong fabric. Another fun idea is to use buttons for eyes!
